

THE VANALLEN GROUP - PERSONAL PROFILE

GEORGE A. ADAMS, JR.

Organization Services

George Adams is a distinguished Business Aviation leader and a Senior Consultant with The VanAllen Group. Previously George was Director of Aviation serving, successively and successfully, the needs of two high net worth individuals (HNWI) in Naples, Florida. Prior to those ventures, he founded and was president of Management Air Service (MAS), which supported a multinational corporation for over 26 years. MAS acted as a separate entity from the corporation. As a result, George was responsible for all the functions of that business unit. In all three roles George excelled in strategic planning, aircraft acquisitions, organization development and financial management. He is acknowledged for guiding his clients successfully through many challenging transitions. The HNWI operations and MAS have each been recognized as World-Class operations.

George received his Bachelor of Science (BS) degree in Professional Aviation from Oklahoma State University. His Post Graduate studies have included the Darden School of Business, NBAA's Management Series, and Training for Effective Aviation Management given by the Xerox Institute. His 40+ years in the aviation industry include over 14,000 hours of flight experience, and an ATP certificate with several type-ratings and substantial international experience.

George has addressed the Corporate Aviation Management Conference of the National Business Aviation Association on several occasions. His topics have included "How to Do More with Less" and "Managing a Single Aircraft Flight Department".

George's greatest assets are:

- ✔ His leadership experience,
- ✔ His professional, quiet, and inclusive interpersonal style,
- ✔ His excellent listening skills, and
- ✔ His unique aptitude for working effectively with clients to create effective solutions.

George brings to his clients a proven leadership approach to customer-oriented problem solving. His innovative applications of industry-leading principles enable him to assist client organizations in achieving tremendous results.
